Improvements to the method of purchasing admission tickets

This week's topics

On February 25, Prime Minister Shigeru Ishiba and Minister of Economy, Trade and Industry Yoji Muto announced changes to make it easier to buy tickets. The measures were announced at a meeting with the Expo Committee of the National Governors' Association.

- Easy Reservation Tickets will be introduced. These online tickets can be purchased without registering Expo IDs; visitors will not be able to make advance reservations of pavilions and events but can book them once inside.
- On-site tickets will also be made available. Visitors will be able to buy tickets for that day in front of the entrance gate.
- Discounts for the Season Pass will be on offer, at 24,000 yen instead of 30,000 yen, to those who have made one-day visits in April and May – and feel that they want to come back for more.
- Season Pass holders will be able to enter the Expo from 9am throughout the event; they will no longer have to wait until 11am..
- An 'Easy Guide to Enjoying the Expo' (title to be confirmed) will be published. The guide will target visitors who plan to visit the Expo without advance pavilion reservations.

2.Introduction of pavilion exhibits

An introduction of official pavilions selected by the Ministry of Economy, Trade and Industry at its own discretion.

1) Ireland

- The pavilion design will be based on the triskelion, an ancient Celtic motif. The three spirals represent Ireland, Japan and the spirit of creative collaboration.
- On June 14, the National Day, musicians, dancers and performers will wear emerald green, Ireland's symbolic colour, to celebrate St Patrick's Day.

2) Monaco

- The pavilion is inspired by Japanese and Mediterranean gardens. Fine wines and cognacs brought in from the renowned Hôtel de Paris Monte Carlo in Monaco can be tasted in the wine cellar-style lounge and on the terrace decorated with rose petals loved by the House of Grimaldi.
- The National Day on June 28 will feature orchestra performance by the Grand Duke Gun Cavalry Company as well as ballet and dance by the Royal Grace Ballet School of Monaco.

3) Australia

- The pavilion reuses materials from previous major international events. The exterior is inspired by Australia's iconic eucalyptus flower, symbolising the country's vibrancy and diversity.
- The pavilion will host a range of cultural events and business programs that will allow visitors to experience Australia's latest technology, rich culture and dynamic society.
- The National Day is September 3.

4) Malaysia

- The pavilion is built from environmentally friendly materials such as bamboo and oil palm trunks. It will be lit up at night, giving it a fantastic appearance different from daytime.
- The exhibit will showcase Malaysia's diverse culture and vibrant economy through traditional food, dance, crafts and play, as well as immersive exhibits using cutting-edge technology.
- The National Day is September 8.
