Chapter II

Section 1

Article 1

According to the Japanese Police

Procedure for the Investigation of Disappearance of Persons

The procedure for the investigation of disappearance of persons shall be conducted as follows:

1. The family member or relative shall report the

disappearance to the police.

2. The police shall

conduct an investigation

at the place of the last known whereabouts of the person.

3. The police shall

question witnesses and neighbors.

4. The police shall

issue a missing person

notice.

5. The police shall continue the investigation

until the person is found.

6. If the person is not found, the police shall inform the family and

relative of the investigation results.

According to the JapaneseNotification, the activities of the JapaneseNotification are prohibited under international law. The JapaneseNotification is responsible for the violation of international law.

Article A.

> The JapaneseNotification has committed acts of aggression against the JapaneseNotification. This act has triggered a state of war between the JapaneseNotification and the JapaneseNotification.

Article B.
